IMPRESSIONS OF CITY OF MUSKOGEE

WHAT THE MAGIC CITY OF THE EAST SIDE HAS ACCOMPLISHED.

In the Arabian Nights one reads of cities built in a night by powerful enchanters, and to the slow moving East such stories are still as inapplicable as would be one about building an auto road to the moon. In the West, however, since Oklahoma was placed on the map the stories have been verified, and Muskogee must be counted among the cities, which if not built in a night, have at least grown from nothing to thriving cities within a single decade. The only enchantment employed was hustle, on the part of those who had the foresight to understand the possibilities of the new country. What has required centuries to accomplish in Europe has been done here in as many years.

Five years ago when the writer of these lines visited Muskogee he found a fairly good sized town which tripled its population in a period of five years. Although knowing that the city had doubled in size during the past five years, one was hardly prepared to appreciate this growth until he had taken a trip about town. Instead of buildings from one to three stories in height, eight and ten story buildings are too common to attract comment. What was five years ago only bare prairie, is today the location of hundreds of substantial homes along well paved streets. In fact, the town has some 75 miles of paving partly of brick and partly of asphalt of which Ada furnished a portion. Right here it might be well to mention the fact that citizens of Muskogee has never been so busy or short-sighted as to lose their appreciation of the value of beautifying their streets. Everything has a clean appearance, thousands of shade trees fringe the sidewalks, and the parkways in the middle of the paved streets are made attractive with bermuda grass and trees. The yards, also, are dotted with trees and flower beds. A large electric sign occupies an arch built across one of the principal streets bears the words, "Welcome to Muskogee" and the citizens prove to strangers that this is no empty statement.

An important factor in the growth of the city is a wide awake commercial club of which Col. Clarence B. Douglass is secretary. He is a live wire and knows how to get what he goes after.

Muskogee has provided well for the education of its children, and its high school building is one of the finest in the United States. Nor has the city lost sight of the necessity of providing for the recreation of its citizens. Besides a number of small parks, Hyde Park, five miles northeast on the banks of the Arkansas, is ample to accommodate several hundred visitors at one time and all kinds of innocent amusements have been provided.

Dr. Hyde to Face Third Trial.
Kansas City, Mo., May 25.—The third trial of Dr. B. Clark Hyde, charged with the murder of Colonel Thomas H. Swope, is scheduled upon the docket of the criminal court to begin next Monday, but it is quite likely that the state will ask for another continuance, as the special prosecutor, United States Senator J. A. Reed, is still detained in Washington by his duties in congress. If another postponement is asked for and granted the case will probably not come up until after the adjournment of congress.

At the first trial, in the spring of 1910, Dr. Hyde was found guilty and was sentenced to imprisonment for life, but a new trial was granted which came up last year Hyde's second trial ended abruptly when Harry Waldron, one of the jurors, escaped from the marshals. The third trial was to begin on January 2, 1912, but at the request of the prosecution it was postponed until May 27, in the hope that by that time Senator Reed would be at leisure to give his attention to the case.

Dr. B. Clark Hyde had been under suspicion in connection with the mysterious illness and deaths in the Swope family ever since the death of Colonel Thomas H. Swope on October 3, 1909. The death of Colonel Swope followed soon after he had suffered a severe convulsion and this convulsion, it was charged by the members of the Swope family, followed immediately after the administration of a capsule given by direction of Dr. Hyde. Dr. Hyde said it was a digestive table.

It was proved at the trial that Dr. Hyde had purchased cyanide of potassium in five-grain capsules. Dr. Hyde claimed he bought the cyanide capsules to kill roaches in his office.

Two days before the death of Colonel Swope, Moss Hunton, a cousin of the millionaire philanthropist, died at the Swope home following a stroke of apoplexy. Dr. Hyde and Dr. G. T. Twyman of Independence treated Hunton. The patient was bled profusely, it is charged at the suggestion of Dr. Hyde. Beginning early in December, an epidemic of typhoid fever broke out in the Swope household during which 10 members of the family were stricken and one, Chairman Swope, a brother of Dr. Hyde's wife, died.

Chrisman died after taking a capsule given at Dr. Hyde's direction and after suffering a convulsion similar to the one that attacked Colonel Swope. Margaret Swope, Chrisman's sister, was also treated by Dr. Hyde, had a convulsion after taking a capsule, but she was given an emetic at once by Dr. Twyman, and recovered.

In all, Dr. Hyde was indicted on eleven counts, the remaining indictments charging him with trying to murder members of the Swope family by introducing typhoid germs and poisons into the medicines administered, Statement by O. E. Lancaster.

Some people are of the opinion that should I be elected mayor of the city of Ada, that bootleggers, jointists and gamblers will flourish under my administration. Now, those that are laboring under any such impression are badly mistaken.

In the first place, should I be in favor of such—which I am not—it is beyond the powers of any one man. And as the prohibition law in effect here is a state law, I believe, in the main, it should be left up to the state and county officials to enforce such.

All I want is to see our little city thrive. I am in favor of harmless amusements, such as baseball at all times, because, in my opinion it is one of the most harmless amusements of the present day that we can indulge in. And again, one of the best advertisements a town can have is a live ball team and a busy diamond.

Hoping I have made my position on this matter plain, should I be elected, I beg to remain yours to serve,

O. E. LANCASTER.

REVERSAL DENIED; JUDGE REPHRENDS

Declares Unjust to People Practice of Reversing Convictions Unless Actual Error Is Shown

Oklahoma City, Ok., May 26.—The case of John Gonzalus of Comanche County, given a life sentence in the penitentiary for murder, was affirmed by the court of criminal appeals in an opinion delivered by Presiding Judge Furman. No error justifying reversal of the case was found by the court. Judge Furman announced the following in the opinion.

"The habit of reversing cases upon light and trivial grounds is to be reprehended from every standpoint. While it is true that a price should never be placed upon the administration of justice, and no man who has been unjustly convicted should ever be denied a rehearing upon the ground of expense of a second trial; yet this court will take judicial notice of the fact that the people of the state are already heavily burdened with taxation and that one of the principal items of expense to the state is the enforcement of its criminal laws. It would therefore be unjust to the people of the state to add to the expense by reversing convictions and sending back cases for retrial, thereby greatly increasing the expense of government, unless a necessity for doing so really exist."

$30,000 FIRE LOSS AT GUYMON YESTERDAY

Guymon, Ok., May 26.—The most destructive fire in the history of Guymon occurred at an early hour this morning. The flames were discovered at 2:30 a. m. in the kitchen of C. E. Hunter's restaurant, on the east side of Main street, and, being fanned by a strong southwest wind, spread very rapidly, in spite of the best efforts of the city fire department.

The fire consumed the entire block except the City National Bank and one frame building, entailing a loss of about $30,000.

HOME AGAIN.

The editor returned this morning via the Katy local from his trip to Muskogee, where he attended the meeting of the State Press Association. The two days session was both profitable and full of pleasure, but after all, there is no place like home. This will be about the only vacation we shall get for a year, although feeling about played out this afternoon, we shall take up the usual round a better spirits and with renewed energy.

Let not your left hand know what your right hand doeth, lest at some unguarded moment the left hand become acquainted with the perfidy of its fellow member and cover its face in shame and rise up and flee.

If the head of the editor is a little swelled just now it is not because of anything special coming his way personally, but on account of the many compliments he heard at the Muskogee press meeting concerning Ada. They all know about Ada and every man, whether newspaper publisher or not, is always ready with a good word for it.

If the socialists should realize their promise of eliminating profits and never producing a surplus of anything, what will happen when the proverbial rainy day comes around? If no man has anything ahead for times of shortage, how is great misery to be prevented when calamities overtake the country as they must always do.

P. A. NORRIS, Pres.

A newspaper can drop the same thought into a thousand minds at the same moment. A newspaper is an adviser who does not require to be sought, but comes to you briefly every day of common weal, without distracting your private affairs. Newspapers therefore become more necessary in proportion as men become more equal individuals, and more to be feared. To suppose that they only serve to protect freedom would be to diminish their importance; they maintain civilization.

A PIKER.

Of all the pikers in Oklahoma the press boys are unanimously of the opinion that E. W. Julian of Oklahoma City, manager of the Western Newspaper Union, is about the worst. He has an opportunity of grilling every mother's son of the boys twelve months out of the year, when they sought to get even at the gridiron banquet at Muskogee Saturday evening, he faded away before his case was called and escaped all that the boys had been storing up for him. Such a piker should be put under a heavy bond before the next meeting and then be given a double dose by way of evening up for his ducking this time.

SUMMER TERM OF THE EAST CENTRAL NORMAL

The summer term of the normal begins today. The work of enrolling is in full progress and something near one hundred and fifty teachers enrolled this morning. About forty enrolled by mail last week. The enrollment is expected to reach two hundred and fifty today, and is expected to reach three hundred by the middle of the week. The term enrollment is expected to reach five hundred if not over. Indications are that the enrollment will be twice that of any of the previous years.

One pleasing feature is that the greater number of the teachers are taking credit work which will keep them here the full ten weeks. The term is divided into two review terms. The first beginning tomorrow and lasting five weeks, the second beginning immediately after the first and lasting four weeks. Examinations for certificates will be given at the close of each term.

Another feature of the term will be the lecture course. The lecture hour, from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., will be filled each day by some member of the faculty or some one from town. The lectures will be on live subjects that will be of interest not only to those attending as teachers but as citizens of the state. The people of the town are invited to attend.

Several of the different counties have official representatives here. Johnson county is represented by Supt. Newman. Murray county by Miss Daniels; Garvin county by S. P. Smith. Coal county by Supt. Kawood and E. H. Durham.

In Freakish Oklahoma.

Travelers waiting at the station at Foss Wednesday witnessed a sample of what nature can do when in the proper mood. In the midst of a stillness of atmosphere that could be almost heard, a gust of wind swooped down, lifted the roof off a freight car and carried it out into a field, where it laid it gently down and all was quiet again. It is said that there was not another sign of any disturbance whatever at any other place in that vicinity.

The story is going the rounds in Pawhuska that on Sunday morning April 21, the next day after the storm, two men found upon the prairie a mass of ice about fourteen feet square and a dozen fourteen inches thick. It had broken into pieces varying from fifty to five hundred pounds, and they said it was miles away from any town or ice house from which it could have blown.—Norman Democrat-Topic.

Among the editors attending the Muskogee meeting was Hamilton Nation, who was on the News staff several months. He is now publishing a paper at Foss and reports that he is doing very well.

GOLF BALL DEADLY WEAPON

New Property of Gutts Percha "Pill" Discovered by Curious Investigator in New York.

New York.—The golf ball has been added to the list of deadly weapons, and now that the season is beginning it behooves golfers throughout the country to take warning from the fate of a local golfer and to refrain from too much curiosity as to how a golf ball is made. Of course many persons who have intercepted the flight of the "gutter" with various portions of their anatomy have for years considered it a deadly weapon. But in these cases it was merely a missile and not inherently dangerous.

Now, however, it has been discovered that the golf ball must also be classed as an explosive. This unexpected state of affairs was brought to light here because of the curiosity of a golfer to discover what sort of a liquid center the ball with which he had been playing contained. As the easiest manner of finding out he was proceeding to vivisect it with his pocketknife, when it suddenly exploded, the liquid center entering one of his eyes. As a result it is feared that he may lose his sight, although this will not be known until he merges from the dark room to which the accident will confine him for several weeks.

Just what the liquid center of the ball which caused it to burst consisted of no one seems to know, although the effect was that of an acid of caustic which burned the eye. Whether golfers carrying a half dozen balls through the city streets will be arrested under the concealed weapon law remains to be seen, but now that they have entered the category of explosives the game may take on a new feature of sportiness.

DISEASE IS ALMOST AT END

Every State and Territory Has Been Invasied by Infantile Paralysis.

Washington.—The wave of poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis, which has been sweeping over the North American continent for the last two years, is apparently subsiding, according to figures collected for the surgeon general by the public health and marine hospital service. Every state and territory in the Union has been visited by the disease, even Alaska, whence it crossed Behring strait to Siberia and is now traveling through Siberia.

The mortality has ranged from 3.1 per hundred cases in the District of Columbia to 13.9 per hundred cases in Vermont. During 1910 the greatest prevalence of the disease was in Iowa, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New York and Pennsylvania; during 1911 the greatest prevalence was in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New York, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin.

The total of deaths in 1911 from poliomyelitis was 440, as against 950 in 1910; and the total of cases in 1911 was 1,931, as against 5,861, in 1910.

Cancer is racing side by side with consumption as a cause of death in the state of Victoria, in Australia, so it is reported by the government statistic at Melbourne. The figures are: Deaths from consumption in 1910, 1,078; 1911, 1,108; from cancer in 1910, 1,081; 1911, 1,100.

The latest reports showed plague at Hongkong, China; at Honokaa, in Hawaii; through India; at Callao, in Peru; at Durban, in South Africa; at Port of Spain, Trinidad, West Indies; at Sargon, in French Indo-China; in Java; on the island of Mauritius; in Algeria, Africa; on the Azores; in Brazil; in British and German East Africa, and in Ecuador, Persia, Siam, Russia, Turkey in Asia and the Straits Settlement.

DOOMED MAN DRAWS BRIEF

Murderer Signs Appeal With Initials, Showing Number in Death House.

Trenton, N. J.—For the first time in the history of New Jersey a man convicted of murder and in the death house at the state prison, has prepared a brief in his own behalf for presentation to the court of errors and appeals in an endeavor to get a new trial.

Frank McDermitt and Chauncey H. Beasley, as counsel for Allison M. MacFarland, filed with the court an elaborate brief prepared by MacFarland, who stands convicted of poisoning his wife in Newark.

The case was carried up on a writ of error and in addition to the lawyers' brief the brief of MacFarland was filed. The man goes into the case in detail and has an explanation for every questionable phrase in the now famous "Bunny" letters. As MacFarland is an educated man, the brief was intelligently prepared. He signed it "D. H. 1851." The initials stand for "Death House," and the numbers are his prison designation.

REVERE BELL'S TONGUE OUT

It Falls From City Hall Tower, Bath, Me., and Makes Hole in Roof—No Curfew Ring.

Bath, Me.—For the first time the Paul Revere bell in city hall tower did not ring out the curfew a few nights ago. When it rang for the noon hour, as has long been the custom, its 15-pound tongue fell out and smashed a hole in the roof of the city building. The bell is the genuine Paul Revere and nearly a century ago hung in the steeple of the old North church in Bath.

Playing Chess

"What's in the box?" asked the girl in pink. The young man with the high forehead smiled at her. "I'm going to teach you chess," he announced. "I brought over the men."

"Why, how perfectly lovely!" cried the young man in a gratified tone. "I was afraid you wouldn't want to learn or would be bored. Few women care about chess. It's really a great game!"

"The idea of not caring about it!" exclaimed the girl in pink, spreading out the board. "I know it's so different. Why, the other girls will simply die of envy when I tell them I can play chess! It sounds so intellectual!"

"Now, we'll set up the men," announced the young man with the high forehead.

"Oh, they're not all alike, are they?" she continued in surprise. "How funny! I should think that would mix you up dreadfully! Don't you think it would be lots easier to play if they were all alike? I heard of a man who could play six games of chess at once—let's try it!"

The young man coughed. Well, I have men for only one game," he said. "Maybe it would be better just at first not to try any more!"

"All right," agreed the girl in pink, cheerfully. "Only I think it would be loads of fun to have six games at the same time. Then we could walk around among them. I get awfully tired sitting still—do you? I guess it's because I have nerves. My mother's sister—"

"Now I'll move this one," said the young man. Then he explained the moves to her and finally said: "It's your turn."

"I think it is perfectly absurd not to let them all move alike," she cried. "It just mixes you up! Is that really the way you have to play or are you just trying to fool me?"

"I'm not smart enough to make it up," said the young man. "Men more brilliant than I invented the moves hundreds and hundreds of years ago."

"Well," said the girl in pink indignantly, "if they've been playing it so long I should think they would have straightened it out and simplified it before now. You move 'em all alike when you play checkers and you know what you are doing! If this thing's a queen why isn't there a crown or something on it, and for these horses that turn corners—how perfectly ridiculous!"

"You'll understand it after you have played it a while," said the young man. "I'd move that one to start with if I were you."

"All right," said the girl in pink. "I'd rather shoot this one down the black squares, though. It's so funny to see it go crisscross instead of straight ahead—"

"But you can't," said the young man. "Your bishop can't move because that pawn is in the way!"

"I don't think a little pawn ought to count when it's a bishop that wants to get by," said the girl in pink, argumentatively.

"Now I'll move this," said the young man, firmly. "You see, it threatens your queen."

"I don't see why that is so awful," said the other. "Oh, you say the queen is the most valuable of all because it moves farther and in every direction? Oh, Arthur! I saw Marie downtown today and what do you suppose she told me? You'll be surprised! You'd never guess—"

"You can't move that way," said the young man. "This isn't dominoes or checkers—the idea isn't to take all your opponent's men!"

"Well, what is the idea?" demanded the young woman. "In checkers you try to take 'em and—oh, to checkmate the king, you say? Well, I'd like to know how I can get anywhere near your king when you've got him on the back line with all those other things stacked up in front of him—you ought to move 'em out. What's that thing? A castle? How silly! It doesn't look any more like a castle than I do! If it's a castle, why doesn't it look like one?"

"I'm afraid," suggested the young man, "that chess doesn't appeal to you! Perhaps we'd better stop playing!"

"Why, I'm perfectly crazy about it!" insisted the girl in pink. "I think it is terribly interesting and I'm so glad I've learned how! And I don't see anything so awfully hard about it either! But it makes my head ache a little, so let's play authors for a change!"

Stonewall Light Franchise Defeated.

The election held here Monday to determine whether or not the city council should grant a franchise for electric lights resulted disastrously for said franchise—there being sixty-eight against it and eleven for it. A majority of the people of Stonewall are in favor of electric lights and would be willing to grant to some individual or firm a franchise for same, if they can be guaranteed a square deal. The town owns the power and if this power is worth anything to any one it certainly should be worth something to the town—or at least that's the view a majority of the voters take of the proposition. Several persons who recently opposed and voted against bonds for the municipal ownership of electric lights are now anxious for another election that they may vote for such bonds. The News is strictly in favor of municipal ownership and believes the people made a mistake in not voting for these bonds last month. This water system is the town's greatest asset and the people acted wisely in not fooling it away and the News would like to see a nice light plant, owned by the town, and operated in connection with it.—Stonewall News.

FAMOUS DONEHEAD PLAYS ON MAJOR LEAGUE DIAMONDS

Exploited by Leading Baseball Players to

HUGH S. FULLERTON

BY CLARK GRIFFITH,

Manager Washington Team, Who is Known as "The Old Fox" and is One of the Wisest Men in Baseball.

There never was any hard luck except mine. Whenever I hear them tell hard luck stories I think to myself that they don't know what it is. For in reference to hard luck and well laid plans going wrong I have a real instance on my mind that always will remain there. It is the losing of the American league pennant to the Boston club in 1904. The race had narrowed down to New York and Boston. We both came east from our last western trip with one point separating us. There were five more games to be played, all between New York and Boston, and the team that won three out of the five would win the pennant. All these five games were to be played in New York, on our own grounds, one on Friday, two on Saturday, and two on Monday, and we came east thinking that we had every advantage and the pennant right in our grasp. The first bad luck was when we discovered that Owner Farrell, not thinking that we would be in the race at all, had in the middle of the season leased the Highlanders' park to the Columbia university team for football on Saturday. That made it necessary to transfer the two Saturday games to Boston. We beat Boston on Friday 3 to 2, and this put us where we only had to break even in the next four games to win. Chesbro had pitched the Friday game. I did my planning and decided to pitch Jack Powell the two games in Boston on Saturday, and to leave Chesbro at home to get a good rest.

Clark Griffith.

over Sunday and to be ready to pitch the two games on Monday if it became necessary, knowing that with two days of good rest he could do it. When I got down to the depot that night there was Chesbro begging to go with us to Boston. Some fool friends of his had notified him that they intended to present him with diamond cuff buttons in Boston, and he was wild to go. I could not refuse him under the circumstances, but those $8 diamond cuff buttons cost us the championship. Chesbro was crazy to pitch, and he warmed up in Boston and declared he felt better than at any time during his life. I was angry because I had wanted him to rest, and refused him. He almost cried and said he had repeated numerous times during the season and always had won (which was true). I still said "no" that we couldn't take the chance. Then Chesbro got Keeler, Elberfeld and all the boys to come to me and beg me to let him pitch. Powell came to me and said he would keep warmed up and be ready to relieve Chesbro in the first game. I fell for it, seeing Chesbro already had warmed up and my plan of resting him was spoiled. He was good for four innings, but before anyone could relieve him in the next Boston made six runs and the game was lost. We hit Dinwiddie hard and made six runs ourselves, and had Powell pitched we would have won easily. Powell and Cy Young met in the second game and Boston won 1 to 0. The one-run game was scored on the rankest kind of luck. A ball thrown from the outfield to Conroy got by him and hit a man on the foot, allowing the run to score. The ball would not have rolled five feet from Conroy, but the crowd had pushed up to within three feet of third base. This made it necessary for us to win both games on Monday. And in the first game, in the ninth inning, with two out and two strikes on Parment, Chesbro let his spit ball slip for a wild pitch and gave Boston the game. We won the next 1 to 0, but the pennant was done.

If there ever was harder luck than that I don't want to hear of it. (Copyright, 1912, by W. G. Chapman.)

PRESS ASSOCIATION MEETS AT MUSKOGEE

The State Press Association, which met at Muskogee Friday and Saturday was the largest in several years, and there was not a dull moment from the time the curtain was rung up until it fell. A formal detail of the program might not interest the average reader, but there are some things which should be mentioned.

In the first place, a meeting of this time is always a signal for the laying aside of petty jealousies and differences. No matter how the editors may differ during the remainder of the year, when they meet everything is laid aside and the man who exhibited any sore spots would be made to feel the withering contempt of the entire organization. For two days they jolly each other, and if any differences ever existed, not a sign of it appears on the surface. For once even politics is almost forgotten, for the boys have assembled to forget their cares and to relax from the strain under which they must work for twelve months out of the year. It was in this happy frame of mind that the association met Friday morning in the rooms of the commercial club and received the greetings of the mayor and other prominent citizens. Upon Col. Clarence B. Douglas, one of the pioneer newspaper men of the state, and now the secretary of the commercial club, fell a large part of the responsibility and hard work of entertaining the 200 or 300 visitors and to his credit let it be said that he proved himself fully equal to the occasion. Late in the afternoon many owners of autos drove up to the meeting place, and the editors and their wives were driven over the city, finally stopping at the beautiful suburban home of Miss Alice Robertson, the post-mistress of Muskogee, where delicious refreshments were served. Miss Robertson's home is on Agency Hill, three miles west of the main part of the city, on an eminence commanding a fine view both of Muskogee and surrounding country. Miss Robertson is the daughter of missionaries of pioneer days and has passed through all the vicissitudes attendant upon the growth of the country, and it was indeed a fitting tribute paid her by Roosevelt and later by Taft when she was given the position she now holds. Although the entire editorial bunch called, a hearty welcome and plenty of nice refreshments awaited all.

In the evening the annual ball was given at the Elks home and this was attended by many citizens of Muskogee. The affair was very brilliant and the young people—and many of the older ones—were highly entertained. Even the wall flowers, of which we were one, could not but admire the scene of gaiety.

Saturday three special trolley cars were run to Hyde Park, five miles from town on the banks of the Arkansas, and it was there that the final meeting was held and officers elected for the ensuing year. After the adjournment a social hour was spent in the park and the editors returned to town in time for the gridiron dinner at the Turner hotel.

The gridiron banquet, was as its name implies, a round of roasts, and about all who escaped being roasted, were those who slipped out before their cases were called. The feast was given by the Muskogee Press Club, and it was not until the elaborate menu had been disposed of that the roasting began. Col. Douglas was the first victim, and was let off comparatively light. He was accused of using his position as toastmaster to promote his candidacy for the office of "poet laureate," and although was at first recalled was later restored to his office. Later Judge Thompson of Muskogee took charge and with an efficient force of pleased men conducted court in a manner that accorded special privileges to none, and the higher the culprit's position, the worse he got soaked. It was 1 o'clock when the happy, but tired crowd adjourned. During this same period the ladies of Muskogee entertained the ladies of the association at a musical.

A feature of the association meeting that must not be forgotten was the performance of the kid band of Chandler brought to the gathering by Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Smith of the Chandler Tribune. Eleven boys, ranging from 10 to 13, composed the band, and they displayed wonderful talent. Col. Suggs was present and talked good roads to the boys.

To sum the whole matter up, the meeting was an unqualified success, and the people of Muskogee certainly deserve praise for their unstinted hospitality in the manner in which they entertained the visitors. There was no possible way in which they could have done more. The Pioneer Telephone Co. must not be forgotten, for members could talk anywhere in the state without costing them a cent. Also, the Remington Typewriter Co. had stenographers at the disposal of the meeting.

Sunday the Frisco road gave a free excursion to Tahlequah and Fort Gibson. This excursion, and the royal entertainment received at Tahlequah will be mentioned tomorrow.

The Muskogee press club were an active lot throughout the meeting, and the dig-digs, sniffs and other committees appointed by the mayor, were hustlers from the jump.

Revival Meeting at First M. E. Church

Yesterday was a great day at the revival meeting. There were four services none of which will be forgotten by the people of Ada, for time to come. Evangelist Law spoke to the Sunday school briefly at 10 o'clock, urging all those who had given their hearts to the Lord in the children's service of Saturday afternoon and at any previous service to affiliate with the church. As a result twenty children were received into the church at that hour. At the 11 o'clock service the evangelist spoke to a crowded house, his subject being, "The Compassion of Jesus for Souls." At the close of the service six were received into the church. In the afternoon service for men only at the city hall a large crowd of men were assembled to hear the message of the evangelist who took for his text, "The Wages of Sin is Death, but the Gift of God is Eternal Life." At the close of the service Mr. Law asked all those who wished to lead a better life and desired the prayers of the Christian people to stand and fifteen or twenty men responded. This was a great service. At the same hour Mrs. Law spoke to a large crowd of ladies at the First M.

FAMOUS DIMEHEAD PLAYS ON MAJOR LEAGUE DIAMONDS

Explained by Leading Baseball Player

HUGH S. FULLERTON

BY ROLLIE ZEIDER.

First Baseman Chicago White Sox, Who Has Proved One of the Sensational Newcomers into the Major Leagues.

The worst play I ever made in a ball game in all my life I didn't make at all. I have made a lot of rotten ones since I started in baseball, but this one beat anything I ever pulled off.

I made the play while I was playing up at Winnipeg. I had been going like a house afire all through the Canadian northwest. I was younger then than I am now, which puts me in the baby-in-arms class, as I'm still a kid (I say that to beat some of these fellows who always are telling how young they are).

It won't do to plead youth as an excuse for the play. In fact I never have been able to explain it myself or to understand how I happened to pull off such a stunt. We needed the game, the score was a tie, and the eighth inning came along with the score still even. They got a man on first and a man on third with one out, and the batter was a fellow who couldn't take the ball in his hands and hit it toward left field, so it was up to me as short stop to cover second and take the throw. The fellow at bat was such a bad hitter that I figured it was about twenty to one they would try a double steal and attempt to score the winning run from third. I moved a little closer to the base line and a little over toward second and studied the situation. The fellow on first was a hard runner, fast, and a nice slider. The fellow on third was only medium fast and usually was a slow starter from third on a play like that. I intended to go perhaps eight feet in front of second base, meet the throw and try to hold that runner at third. I hadn't any fear at all that he could score. What I wanted to do was to hold him to third and make a play on the other runner. I figured I could jump back, tag the runner as he did and still hold the runner at third.

The double steal was tried just as I expected it would be. The runner from first came down at top speed, ready to slide, never slackening speed. The catcher made a perfect throw and I went in and met the ball, caught it, motioned to throw to the plate, and then dived backward and tagged the runner who was coming down to second. The fellow on third hadn't moved.

I was so tickled over making the play that I jumped up, yelled at the runner on third, telling him what a slow thinker he was, and then fired the ball the foot over the first baseman's head to the stands and started for the bench, tickled to death with myself at having made a fine play. The fellow on third trotted home and when I was almost to the bench I waked up and discovered that my mind had slipped a cog and that the game probably was lost. I had been so pleased at making the first part of the play that I guess I forgot all about anything else and gave them the run I was playing to prevent.

YOUNG MOTHERS

No young woman, in the joy of coming motherhood, should neglect to prepare her system for the physical ordeal she is to undergo. The health of both herself and the coming child depends largely upon the care she bestows upon herself during the waiting months. Mother's Friend prepares the expectant mother's system for the coming event, and its use makes her comfortable during all the term. It works with and for nature, and by gradually expanding all tissues, muscles and tendons, involved, and keeping the breasts in good condition, brings the woman to the crisis in splendid physical condition. The baby, too, is more apt to be perfect and strong where the mother has thus prepared herself for nature's supreme function. No better advice could be given a young expectant mother than that she use Mother's Friend; it is a medicine that has proven its value in thousands of cases. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for free book for expectant mothers which contains much valuable information, and many suggestions of a helpful nature.

WEAVER AND CLARK GOT A "WIRE"

Friday evening while most of the boys of the Oklahoma press gang were loafing in the lobby of the Turner hotel at Muskogee, some one informed Otis Weaver that the clerk had a wire for him. All sorts of visions of calamities that might have befallen his business during his absence floated through his mind as he chased himself through the crowd to the clerk's desk. While the crowd looked on with growing interest that important personage solemnly went through a pile of Western Union envelopes and finally handed out the wire—a copper one two or three inches long. Otis smiled and faded away.

Presently L. R. Clark of Francis happened along and Otis told him the same story about a wire. He also pulled the cork under. However, in justice to them, it should be said that they were not the only ones to bite for several others were caught in course of about fifteen minutes.

Miss Cartwright's Constancy

"If Amelia Cartwright would pay a little more attention to the love of the living and less to that of the dead, she might be happier, and save Amos Tilghast from wearing his heart out."

Mrs. Lowell stabbed her needle viciously into the sock she was mending and rocked violently.

"Amelia has a constant nature," said Ann Briggs.

"Constancy is all right if there's any reason for it," said Mrs. Lowell, "but everybody knows that Charles Burroughs wasn't true to her before he died. He was engaged to two girls at once."

"But Amelia doesn't know it," said Miss Ann, gently, "and it would hurt her to know."

"Well, wouldn't it be better for her to be hurt a little and get waked up to the fact that it is Amos who has really loved her all these years and who deserves to get her?"

"Well, I don't know," said Miss Ann. "I hate to see Amos hurt and I hate to see Amelia hurt. Love is love, and I guess most of us have to suffer for it."

"There she goes, now," said Mrs. Lowell, glancing out of the window. "I knew she would. Every Saturday she's off to the cemetery with a wreath of pink flowers. Sometimes it's roses and sometimes it's sweet peas and sometimes it's verbena. But it's always pink."

"Poor thing," said Miss Ann.

"That's what hurts Amos so," said Mrs. Lowell. "He knows Amelia hasn't enough to live on and he has plenty. And I think he knows, too, that she would love him if she would let herself. He said to me not long ago: 'Aunt Carrie, when I talk to her about it, she just cries and says, "Please don't." Poor Charles thought I had it in me to be constant—and I want to be faithful to him—I want to be faithful.'"

"There goes Amos now," said Miss Ann. "Do you know he's got some pink roses in that paper? I believe he's on his way to the cemetery."

"Well, he'll meet Amelia there," said Mrs. Lowell, "and I guess she'll be touched to see that he has remembered Charles."

"Yes," said Amelia.

The girl unwound yards of waxed paper from about a magnificent wreath. It was evidently made up by a city florist, of pink hot-house roses, and valley lilies, with maiden-hair fern veiling the whole.

"Oh," gasped Amelia, "how beautiful!"

"He always loved pink," said the girl.

Amelia looked up startled. "You knew that?" she asked.

"Yes," said the girl. "When I wore pink bows on my hair he always admired them. And there was a little pink lawn dress that he made me wear the night he left me."

"He died ten years ago," said Amelia. "It is a long time—did you know him—just before he died?"

The girl nodded. "He lived out west in the same town where I taught. And we were engaged." She did not see Amelia's start of surprise. "He came east—just to see his folks, he said, and then he was to come back—and we were to be married."

"Then he died," the girlish voice went on, "and all these years I have wanted to come and lay a wreath on his grave. I saved my money so that I might. And—now I am here—and I can't bear it."

Looking on the other's grief, Amelia wondered why she was unmoved. She wondered, too, at a certain lightness of heart. She felt free—free to live her own life, to love as she would.

She saw Amos coming up the hill. She bent over the sobbing girl. "He loved you," she said tenderly; "you have that to comfort you."

Then she went swiftly down the hill and met Amos. "I don't just know what has happened to me," she said. "Take me away, Amos, take me where nobody can see me cry."

He led her to a place screened by a row of chairs. "What is it, dear heart?" he asked, tenderly.

She told him. "Was he—as fickle as that?" she demanded.

"Everybody knew it," he said, "but you."

"And no one told me. Oh, Amos, I feel so sorry for that girl. Somehow I don't feel sorry for myself. Perhaps I've been just clinging to a dream. But she knew him and lived close to him and, oh, I hope he loved her best. It would be so tragic if—she is mourning a false lover, Amos."

"And you?" Amos asked.

"I found out after he came east that he wasn't all that I had thought he was—but I thought he loved me—and it seemed so pitiful for him to be up here and alone—with no one to care—and so I tried to be true."

There was a light in Amos' eyes as he bent over her. "And now that he has been over her. And now that he has some one else to love him—can't you pity me—Amelia?"

"I declare," said Mrs. Lowell, a month later. "Amos says Amelia is going to marry him. And when I asked him his favorite color, he laughed and said it was blue."
